

The interface is black and white.

The records are the colour.

Every pixel of chrome comes from one neutral ramp. The only saturated colour on screen is album artwork. One exception is spent deliberately, on danger.

Alert — the only chromatic token #B3261E light · #F2B8B5 dark

A purely monochrome system cannot signal danger by colour, and the collection is sacred — deleting a record must be unmistakable. So we spend exactly one colour on it. Never a badge, never an unread count, never emphasis. Unread chat is a filled Ink900 dot; selection is an inverted fill; success has no colour at all.

Which press? Mine's the '73
Harvest

Same — HVST 214. Sleeve is a bit
ringworn but the vinyl is clean

VG+ then. Good find.
